

Dear Teachers and Friends,

I am very excited to announce that Cool Australia has updated the 'We are the Weather Makers Teaching Resources'. Each lesson is aligned with the new Australian Curriculum and provides teachers with support to increase students' knowledge on climate change while encouraging them to take positive action. These fantastic resources will allow teachers and students across Australia to access relevant and up-to-date information on climate change and its impacts. The resources incorporate videos and infographics published by the Climate Council, which are based on the most up-to-date climate science available. Further information is available at: <http://www.climatecouncil.org.au/>

These resources are free to access and can be downloaded from the Cool Australia website by following this link: <http://coolaustralia.org/unit/weather-makers-secondary/> They are an invaluable tool for teachers to address climate change in an educationally relevant, scientifically sound, and action-based way.

Sincerely,

Tim Flannery,
Chief Climate Councillor
